I knew we should be back in four or five days, bowever, and I arranged with the cook accordingly. One Monday morning we took the train and started, having engaged a farmer's daughter to take charge of the kitchen, and at the nearest railroad station we were met by a farmer and his lumber wagon. The sun poured down its bottest, the dust had covered grass and bushes, and as we jogged and jolted along the farmer queried of Mr. Bowser:

"We did. Ah! this country air has already "Has, eh? Well, there's heaps of it, and I'm thinking von'll get all you want in about a week. I think a city chap is a blamed fool to come out here."

"Come out for your health, I suppose?"

'Do you! Why, the doctors recommended it. That boy ought to gain a pound a day, and I am sure me wife will brace right up with those pastoral scenes before her eyes."
"The doctors and pastoral scenes be durned!" growled the farmer as he turned to his hors s, and those were the last words he uttered until he landed us at the gate. It was a comfortable frame house, and did not observe the surroundings until after dinner. It struck me that Mr. Bowser had uddenly lost his enthusiasm, but I didn't know why until I got out doors. The barn had partly fallen in, giving it a welrd and lonely look, most of the fencing was down, a gust of wind had laid the snoke house on its back, and nearly every tree and bush about the house was dead or dying. "Is this one of the pastoral scenes you re-ferred to?" I asked of Mr. Bowser.

"There you go!" he snapped. "You can't expect things to look as nice out here as in Central park. We come for the balmy breezes

"You needn't why Mr. Bowser me! You gave me no peace until I agreed to come, and low I'll remain here five straight years!" When the summer sun went down and the stars came out we were not as happy as a night have been. Mr. Bowser still held his hand on his stomach, the baby cried because the milk tasted of wild onlons, and the girl est the old onken bucket in the thirty foot well while getting a pail of fresh water. I asked Mr Bowser when the kine would begin to low and the whippoorwills to sing, and be was so mad he wouldn't speak. However, if the kine didn't low, the pinch bugs and mosquitoes did. A HAUNTED SPOT. The Mysterious Spirit of Myrtle Pond in Georgia-The Story. There is a lonely and sequestered spot in the woods around Brunswick, where no negro man, woman or child will dare

In what is generally known as Fulton's pasture, near Dixville and facing the boulevard, is a pond of stagnant water, the surroundings of which are all suggestive of quiet and solitude. The surface of the pond is dotted with small clumps of sand, upon which a myrtle bush grows. The pond itself is about 500 yards in circumference, with an average depth of one and a half feet. It is said that no negro will go near this pond at any hour of the day, and investigation has proven this statement to be true. Upon questioning one of these prejudiced darkies, a reporter learned the following cause for shunning it by the colored people. Way back yonder in the early part of the year 1869, a young negro girl was Relatious of the Senses, Dr. Urbanschitsch, of Vienna, has for some time past been engaged in a series of experiments on the mutual action of the sense organs, and the results he has obtained are most curious. The senses of sight and hearing were shown by these experiments to be to some extent dependent on each other. Colored plates were placed at a distance where the colors could scarcely be distinguished, but on the production of various sounds the colors were more readily recognized, the colors becoming the more distinct the higher the pitch of the same. AERMOTOR the wheel of which is made almost wholly of steel, on the tension or bicycle plan, is very strong, light, durable and will stand great centrifugal strain. It makes three revolutions to one long, easy stroke of the pumps, faces up to a breath of air, and does effective work when other wheel are idle, for the slightest breeze will run it. A 12-foot Aermoter is guaranteed to do more work than any 16-foot woo ten wheel made. It regulates perfectly, keeps a uniform speed in tempest, is noiseless, simple, and has only half the weight of the ordinary combination of wood, putty, paint and cast iron, called a windmill. Our patent tilt ower brings the wheel down for oiling, or in case of storm, and a child can lower it. It-saves human life and doubles the life of the wheel.
